

Frequently Asked Questions: Literary Imagination and OUP

As a subscriber, you are entitled to access the Oxford University Press online. You should have received an email with important information about OUP online. If you have lost track of that email, all of the general information included therein is provided below.

Until when is my subscription valid?

Membership dues to the ALSCW are good through the calendar year. Anyone who joins or renews prior to the annual conference will have his or her dues applied to that year, and will receive all issues of Literary Imagination for the year distributed prior to his or her becoming a member or reinstating membership. Thus, dues paid in March or June 2011, say, will be valid through December 31, 2011, and will require renewal for the 2012 calendar year starting on January 1, 2012. On the other hand, dues paid on November 28, 2011 would instead be applied to dues for the 2012 calendar year, and the membership and subscription period would therefore begin on January 1, 2012.

How do I access OUP online?

Most personal subscriptions include online access to articles from 1996 onwards. To find a journal, visit http://www.oxfordjournals.org/our\_journals/. Membership in the ALSCW entitles subscribers to Literary Imagination both in print and online. For access across an organization, you will need an institutional subscription.

To gain online access, you first need to activate it. To do this, follow the instructions at http://oxfordjournals.org/faq/access\_purchase/person.html. A “subscriber number” will be sent to you by OUP via email shortly after your subscription is processed. This subscriber number will be needed for online access and should be included in all correspondences with OUP.

NOTE: Please allow up to 36 hours from registration for access to become available.

Online subscriptions are accessible for the period of your subscription. If your subscription is for next year, and you do not have a current subscription, you will not be able to access your journal until January 1st. Similarly, if you are a member, your access to OUP online will be suspended at the start of the new year.

Where can I find my OUP subscriber number?

Your subscriber number should have been emailed to you by OUP upon their receipt of your membership information. The subscriber number is an 8 or 12 digit number included in the order confirmation letter. If you no longer have that email, the subscriber number can also be found at the top of the address label on your print copy of Literary Imagination. If you do not have a label, go to Oxford University Press' customer service page, located at http://www.oxfordjournals.org/contact\_us.html#custserv. Follow the link "Email us using our online forms," provide your full delivery address and the name of the journal, and you will receive an email with your subscriber number included therein. If you are having trouble, please contact the ALSCW directly and we will assist you in recovering this information.

How do I submit to Literary Imagination?

Please note that all submissions must be online and the journal does not accept simultaneous submissions.

Preparing your manuscript:

Manuscripts must be double-spaced and the title page must include the full address, e-mail address, telephone number and fax number of the author and, if applicable, co-author. Also include in the title page a short biography (one or two sentences long). If your manuscript is an article, include a running title that will appear at the heads of the pages. Please provide a short abstract of your work as well. There is no limitation on the word-count of submissions.

Permissions: The journal requires the author to have print and online permissions to reprint any copyrighted materials. For more information on this please visit:

http://www.oxfordjournals.org/access\_purchase/permissions\_guidelines.html.

Figures: The requirements for submission and reproduction in the journal are different. For information on preparing your figures for publication, go to <http://dx.sheridan.com/onl/>. The number of illustrations should be kept to a minimum.

Captions for figures (in upper case, please) should be listed separately and all tables must have a title. Footnotes may be used in the tables but not in the text.

Saving your manuscript in the appropriate format:

The manuscript file must be saved as .doc or .rtf. (.docx is not accepted). If you wish to submit TeX and LaTeX files, note that the review staff may not be able to access these files. Please avoid special characters and spaces when naming your files and do not forget to include a three-letter extension at the end of the file name (.doc, .rft, .tif, .pdf, .mov).

All appropriately submitted files will be automatically converted into one .pdf file. You will have the opportunity to revise this file before submission.

Submission Process:

To begin, go to the submission website at <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/oup/li> and log into the system. If you have never submitted or reviewed a manuscript using this system before, you may create an account by selecting the “Create an account” button. If you already have an account but have forgotten your password, contact the journal’s editorial office by clicking the “Forgot your password” button rather than creating an entirely new one.

Once logged in, go to the “Author Center”, choose “Submit Manuscript” and follow the instructions provided. Use the “Next” and “Previous” buttons given by the website rather than the “Back” and “Forward” buttons from your browser. If you click “Main Menu” all of your information will be saved and your manuscript will appear in your “Author Center” under “un-submitted manuscripts”.
